

Executive Director Academic Chairs' Council
Position Description and Qualifications
AY 2008-2009

Position Description: ACC is the voice and the ears of academics at NAU. Its task is to insure 1) that the leaders of all NAU academic departments are well-informed about campus developments that affect the institution's ability to deliver educational programs to its students; 2) that academic program leaders have the opportunity, through informed deliberation, to advise the NAU Administration on all aspects of academic policy and procedure; 3) that representatives of academic programs participate in institutional governance, and contribute to a culture of collaboration in the conduct of NAU's academic business; 4) that new department chairs are welcomed and integrated into an experienced and supportive cohort. The Executive Director promotes the successful operation of ACC through both regular and ad hoc activities, as detailed below:

1. Organize, chair, and report on monthly meetings of ACC. Organize special ad hoc meetings (such as presidential candidate interviews). Prepare guests for the "discussion rather than the presentation" format of ACC meetings.
2. Organize, chair, and report on yearly or semester ACC workshops. Discuss with key administrators possible topics and directions for discussion. Solicit and disseminate background information, in electronic form, ahead of time.
3. Organize, chair, and report on meetings of the Executive Committee for the purpose of setting ACC agendas and discussing appropriate ACC responses to current campus issues and developments.
4. Call ad hoc meetings of the Executive Committee when rapid response is essential.
5. Serve as ACC representative to the Provost's Academic Leadership Council (PALC), and report to or from ACC, as needed, on items that come before that group. Speak out when PALC raises issues on which ACC has a viewpoint and represent that viewpoint clearly and without slant.
6. Serve as ACC representative on the President's Cabinet. Represent ACC and foster the interests of academic programs through advocacy and information.
7. Serve as a conduit to and from ACC for all requests for information or for sharing information; screen requests for ACC access or meeting times.
8. Gather information regarding campus developments and insure that ACC remains informed as to matters impacting the delivery of academic programs. Arrange discussions with key "guests" at ACC meetings. Introduce ACC to new campus administrators and other important officials.
9. Represent or coordinate ACC representation for dealing with matters of concern to academic programs.

10. Represent ACC on an ad hoc basis (e.g. at visits by legislators).
11. Write, edit, and disseminate ACC position statements, recommendations, etc.
12. Serve as the liaison with officials with groups sharing similar interest (such as the Senate, and the Associate Deans Roundtable).
13. Keep the ACC webpage up to date and post meeting notes.

Qualifications:

1. Demonstrated service as a chair at Northern Arizona University within the past 10 years;
2. Demonstrated ability to clearly and persuasively represent a diverse constituency (such as the ACC) in a variety of venues and to a variety of audiences;
3. Demonstrated ability to frame complex issues in readily understandable terms;
4. A demonstrated clear understanding of both large and small scale University issues;
5. Demonstrated active participation in the life of the University; and
6. Although a historical perspective of the University is helpful it is not required.

The Executive Director is elected for a two-year term and is expected to run and represent ACC year round.

Compensation:

Compensation is negotiated with the Provost, but generally has included a stipend and one-course-per-semester buyout.
