

New Directions in Diversity:
Issues in Teaching and Scholarship 2010-2011 Symposium Series

Insights from Native American Studies: Bordertown Relations

Friday, October 29

9:00 -11:00 am

University Union, Havasupai A-B

Sponsored by Office of the President

Presented by Ethnic Studies and Faculty Development Program

Session Moderator, Sara Alemán, Ethnic Studies Chair and Professor of Sociology and Social Work

Resource Faculty

Jeff Berglund, Associate Professor of English and President's Distinguished Teaching Fellow

Sharon Doctor, Assistant Director of Native American Student Services

Lomayumtewa Ishii, Chair of Applied Indigenous Studies and Assistant Professor of History

Maxine Janis, Assistant Clinical Professor of Dental Hygiene

Based on recommendations during the past year, the session format has been modified to enable more discussion with the resource faculty.

Agenda Framework (a look at the process and flexible schedule)

8:30 – 9:00	Continental breakfast available
9:00 – 10:00	Introduction of topic and panel Insights from each of the resource faculty
10:00 – 10:10	Conversation among the panelists about their individual and collective work
10:10 – 10:50	Resource faculty will each go to a different table for a discussion on the topic and their work, its further implications to the teaching and scholarship of people at the roundtable.
10:50 – 11:00	Full group discussion on insights from the table conversations